

PRISONERS FIRE COUNTY JAIL HERE

HIS TRAIL ENDS

EZRA MEEKER

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 3.—Ezra Meeker, 97, one of the last survivors of the "covered wagon" days, died here this morning after an illness of several months. Meeker was born in Huntville, O., and in 1852 took his bride and seven weeks' old child by ox team over the old Oregon trail. He was the author of several books on pioneer life. In 1906 he retraced the Oregon trail in an ox cart, and four years ago flew over the route in an airplane piloted by Lieut. Oakley G. Kelly, across-country flyer.

CHILD KILLED AS TRAIN HITS CAR SATURDAY

William Collins And Wife
Severely Hurt At Crossing

Joan Collins, 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Collins, 1968 Coventry road, Columbus, is dead and her parents and another child are in Springfield City Hospital with injuries sustained when their auto was demolished by a west-bound Pennsylvania Railroad freight train at the Gladstone Road crossing at South Charleston at 8:30 p. m. Saturday.

Joan Collins sustained a fractured skull and died at the Springfield hospital at 3:30 a. m. Sunday without regaining consciousness. The Collins family was driving from Jamestown to Columbus when the accident occurred.

Collins, 32, driver of the car, is in a critical condition. He is thought to have several broken ribs, bruises and possible severe internal injuries. His wife, Edith, 33, sustained a fractured right leg, a laceration of the face and bruises on the pelvic bone and bruises on the face.

It is supposed Mr. Collins mistook the freight engine headlight for the crossing signal and was watching an approaching east-bound passenger train on another track.

The heavy car was caught on the cow catcher and the locomotive and carried 200 feet down the rails before the train could be stopped.

Collins was crushed under the steering wheel. His wife and two children were still in the rear seat of the car when witnesses reached the wreckage.

The crash victims were hurried to the Springfield hospital, accompanied by Dr. Milligan, of South Charleston.

Mr. Collins is the owner of the Bath Twp. Herald, Fairfield, weekly newspaper, which he purchased last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Collins and two children had spent several days at the home of Mrs. Collins' parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. St. John, near Paintersville, Mr. and Mrs. St. John and Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Spahr of the same vicinity have been in Michigan on a hunting trip and they were expected to arrive home by motor Sunday evening.

The Collins family left for home shortly after 7 o'clock Saturday evening. Mr. and Mrs. St. John and Mr. and Mrs. Spahr failed to arrive as expected Sunday night and efforts to locate them have failed.

Funeral services for Joan Collins will be held at the residence of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Collins near Cedarville, at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. The services will be conducted by the Rev. Ashbrook of Neil Ave. U. P. Church, Columbus, the family's pastor, assisted by the Rev. Webster of Clifton and the Rev. Mantle, of New Jasper.

MURDERER DIES IN ELECTRIC CHAIR

DELEFONTE, Pa., Dec. 3.—Hanging in an eleven hour appeal to Gov. John S. Fisher for a respite, Rogers Dilleworth, Philadelphia negro murderer, was electrocuted today at Rockview Penitentiary.

Before he was taken into the death chamber at 7 a. m. Dilleworth admitted to the prison chaplain that he had killed Policeman John Greedy and James Grubb, negro, during a fight in a Philadelphia "speakeasy" June 7, 1925.

QUAKE HITS CHILE; 221 DEAD

EXPECT DEATH TOLL MAY INCREASE FROM UNREPORTED TOWNS

Government Planning Relief; Red Cross Help Is Sought

SANTIAGO, Chile, Dec. 3.—The newspaper La Nacion, on the basis of its correspondents' reports, estimated today that 221 persons were killed in the earthquake which rocked the section 150 miles south of here.

La Nacion estimated the injured at 535.

The state telegraph agency, which previously had placed the number of known dead at 132, changed its figure to 137 and there were at least six towns from which only scattered reports had been received.

The government's death list of from 100 to 120, outside of the town of Constitucion, stood unchanged. Fifty-four persons were killed in Constitucion, the report said.

Meanwhile, the government was making every effort to speed its relief plans. President Ibanez made a hurried trip to Talca, capital of the province of Talca. On his return, he was met by his ministers who immediately began to map a relief campaign on the basis of the president's observations.

The war minister already has conferred with the national Red Cross officials and offers of assistance have been received from Argentine and the Uruguayan and Paraguayan ministers.

Apparently the two towns worst hit were Talca and Constitucion, a seaport which is the capital of the province of Maule.

An eyewitness account of the chaotic conditions in Talca was furnished by Enrique Didier, correspondent of Diario Ilustrado.

"I found dozens of tents in the railroad stations," he wrote. "Planks and bedclothes were piled up housing entire families. I traversed the town by moonlight, walking in the center of the streets all the time. I heard strange rumblings which were made more perceptible by the movements of buildings which still were standing weakly."

"Gardens were filled with tents, while on all sides there were automobiles covered with canvas, mattresses and cloth, which housed their owners."

"The same scenes were all along the Alameda. Without artificial light except acetylene torches placed at strategic points, with buildings abandoned in ruins and with the streets filled with makeshift living quarters, Talca presents a fantastic aspect."

"A conservative calculation would say that 5 per cent of the edifices were unharmed and that 20 per cent were in ruins. The rest cannot be occupied."

The six towns from which complete reports have not been received are: Chillan, San Javier, San Vicente, El Retiro, San Felipe, and Molina.

YOUTH KILLED BY AX IN STREET FIGHT

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Dec. 3.—James Turner, 24, was under arrest here today in connection with the death of Samuel Ford, 23, who was killed in a street fight.

Ford, armed with a knife, battled Turner who wielded a short handled ax, police said.

Seven witnesses to the fight also were taken to the police station for questioning.

Ford died while he was being treated at a hospital. Physicians said his skull was fractured.

The cause of the quarrel was not learned at once.

AUTO VICTIM KNEW EX-PRINCE

Frederick Of Germany, May Be Asked To Identify Picture Of Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 3.—The photograph of a Cleveland, who was killed in an early morning traffic crash on Oct. 26, may be sent to the former German Crown Prince Frederick William, in an effort to discover the man's real identity.

Known here as Frederick Karl Boas, an industrial engineer, the man is believed to have been a former officer in the Kaiser's navy. Guarded references to his former life led friends to believe that at one time Boas was an intimate friend of the crown prince.

W. P. Plagenz, administrator of the estate, has been endeavoring to pick up the thread of Boas' past life, since the fatal accident.

A woman to whom Boas proposed some years ago is said to have revealed much of the little information about his past life that has been obtained.

To her he told guarded stories of a brilliant career in the Kaiser's service, ruined by some mishap and of his subsequent departure from his homeland.

Boas was interned at his home in Gates Mills during the World War.

The outbreak of the war upset his plans for the development of an industrial plant here, it was said.

WEEK-END TRAFFIC TOLL HEAVY

THREE MEMBERS OF ONE FAMILY DEAD, TWO HURT

Worst Tragedy Occurs At Pleasant Corners When Auto Turns Over; Many Cities Report Tragedies, Dayton Two

By UNITED PRESS

Traffic and grade-crossing crashes took a heavy toll of dead and injured in Ohio over the week-end, a survey by the United Press today revealed.

Perhaps the worst accident occurred near Pleasant Corners where three members of one family were killed and two were injured, one probably fatally.

Those killed were Mrs. Rosa Ross, 57; Bennie Ross, 7, and John W. Ross, 5, grandsons of Mrs. Ross, all of Columbus. Mona Ross, 3, suffered a fractured skull and is not expected to live. The other person injured was Miss Pearl Lexley, 23, Mrs. Ross' stepdaughter.

Floyd A. Ross, driver of the car and father of the dead children, escaped injury.

Ross told police the accident occurred when his mother became excited and grabbed the steering wheel, causing the automobile to lurch into a ditch and overturn. Ross' wife and three other children were not in the car.

In Cincinnati Mrs. Lillian Seiler, 19, was injured fatally when she was struck by a street car.

George Hewitt, Cleveland, was killed in Cleveland when he was struck by a car driven by Patrolman William Bozyk.

Other fatalities were recorded as follows:

EAST LIVERPOOL—Mrs. Edna Cranes, 50, killed when the automobile in which she was riding was backed into an interurban car.

PRISONERS ESCAPE FROM CHILLICOTHE PRISON ON SUNDAY

Five Flee Under Hail Of Bullets From Prison
Guards

CHILLICOTHE, O., Dec. 3.—Five prisoners escaped from the federal reformatory here last night amid a hail of shots fired by guards.

The prisoners bolted and fled past the guards who had been posted along the boundaries of the reformatory grounds.

Police throughout the state were asked today to search for the escaped men.

Those escaping were:

William J. Bartunek, 19, barber, serving four years for violation of the Dyer act, at Charleston, W. Va.

Harry Zolent, 17, barber, Chicago, serving two years for violation of the Dyer act.

C. W. Stewart, 22, stevedock, Charleston, S. C., serving fifteen months for violation of the Dyer act.

Charles Crook, 20, core-maker, Chicago, serving two years for violation of the Dyer act.

William Cantor, 22, laborer (record not received).

Cantor escaped while helping guards search for the other four men.

Two of the prisoners were believed to have driven away in a car stolen from Wilson Bills, a tobacco salesman.

SEEK GIRL'S BODY

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 3.—Police here today were searching for the body of a girl who was said to have leaped into the Scioto river from a downtown bridge. A passerby said he saw the girl leap onto the bridge railing, then disappear.

HOOVER PLEASSED BY WELCOME EXTENDED ON ECUADOR VISIT

Party Now Headed For Peru; Stops At Sea-
port

ABOARD THE U. S. S. MARYLAND, Enroute to Callao, Peru, Dec. 3.—The warm welcome received by President-Elect Herbert Hoover on the first South American call of his good will tour was in the minds of all on board today as the Maryland headed along the barren South American coast toward Callao, Peru.

The Maryland is due at Callao Wednesday morning and the Hoover party will go fifteen miles from there to Lima, the capital city of Peru, for Hoover's second South American visit, Callao is seaport for Lima.

It was with impressive ceremony and a magnificent setting that Hoover bade President Ayora, of Ecuador, farewell yesterday.

On the gangway of the Maryland at 4:30 p. m., Hoover and Ayora exchanged Spanish "embraces" in the characteristic Latin American manner of saying a sympathetic farewell. Ayora then left to board the Cleveland for his trip back up the Cuyas River to Guayaquil.

It was the culmination of Hoover's Ecuadorian visit which Ecuadorians and Americans unanimously agreed was a signal success.

The welcome to Hoover along the miles of waterfront to Guayaquil, the tumultuous popular demonstration in the United States president's honor in the municipal plaza, the shower of gifts, the well-executed parade, the dinner and ball were all features of the visit—but above all, was the fact that Mr. Hoover and Ayora established a bond of comradely sympathy, confidence and mutual generosity.

GRANDSTAND FIRED

WILMINGTON, Dec. 3.—The twenty-five year old grandstand at the Wilmington football field was fired again yesterday but firemen extinguished the blaze before it was seriously damaged.

CONGRESS HAS CONVENED FOR BRIEF SESSION

Serious Problems To Await Expected Special
Call

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The defunct seventeenth congress of the United States convened at noon today to grapple with the legislative problems of the nation. Its leaders agreed that it cannot handle the two most pressing questions—farm relief and tariff revision.

These questions, they seemed agreed, await solution in a special session which they expect President-elect Hoover to call in March or in September.

While only the usual formalities of opening the session were observed, various groups were arguing among themselves about what they should undertake to do before Hoover brings the new congress with its enlarged Republican majority into power, March 4.

Radio legislation, Boulder Dam, Muscle Shoals, railroad consolidation, a dozen government appropriation bills, and some 700 measures proposed for the relief of various corporations, individuals, and agencies faced the 530 senators and representatives as they gathered in the historic capitol halls, silent for six months, to buzz again with the business of the country.

The farm bloc, aided by other leaders, was attempting to persuade all members that no adequate farm relief legislation is possible in the three months session. The impossibility of meeting Mr. Hoover's three-pronged campaign program and the failure of President Coolidge to suggest any remedy in vetoing the McNary-Haugen bill were the two arguments used.

The advocates of tariff revision—and this group included nearly all the members—agreed it was physically impossible to pass a tariff bill inside of six months.

The ways and means committee was called to meet before the opening hour. Chairman Hawley summoned the committee members to decide the tariff issue but decision about the matter was expected to be delayed until sentiments of the various factions could be rounded up officially. This may require several weeks.

Chairman McNary intends to introduce this "H-o-v-e-r" bill, without the equalization fee, hoping it may be passed so that an extra session can be avoided, but he has few of the supporters among those who urged his earlier bill. Without them, his cause is lost.

A caucus of senate Republicans was called by vice president elect Curtis to determine the legislative program of the session.

The unfinished business of the senate is the Johnson boulder dam bill which broke up the last session in a filibuster.

Next in line on the calendar is the bill proposing a $174,000,000 naval cruiser rebuilding program.

Behind these two major items is listed the Kellogg anti-war treaty which must be ratified before it can be effective.

The house has no important unfinished business. It closed its last session, marking time for the senate. More than 500 bills are on the calendar.

The opening session called only for swearing in of new members, three in the senate and seven in the house, adoption of resolutions by both the house and the senate notifying each other and the president that they are in session and ready to do business, and adjournment until tomorrow but of respect to members who died during the recess.

PLAYER IS HURT

GALLIPOLIS, O., Dec. 3.—Russell Smith, 17, was in a hospital here today recovering from an operation in which one of his kidneys was removed. The kidney was torn during a football game in which Smith, despite the injury, remained in the lineup.

WOMAN WOUNDED BY BURGLARS SHE TRAPPED RANSACKING HOME

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 3.—Mrs. Emily Caunter, 60, a retired school teacher, was shot and seriously wounded early today by one of two burglars whom she trapped in the hallway outside her bedroom.

Her assailant is believed by police to be the same burglar who used a gun in escaping from a number of east side homes in the past month, after awakening his victims.

Mrs. Caunter lives with her sister, Mrs. Mary Carlton, 77, also a widow. About 3:30 a. m. she said she was awakened by footsteps outside her bedroom.

Taking a revolver, she stepped into the hallway. There were two men there. She covered the one nearest to her with the revolver.

"If you know what's good for you you'll get out of here," she said she told them.

Without replying, the burglar pulled a gun and fired three shots at her. One entered her right breast.

Mrs. Carlton, awakened by the shots, notified police who discovered the burglars entered the house through a kitchen window and had fled through the rear door.

KING GEORGE RALLIES AFTER RELAPSE; DOCTORS ALARMED

Physicians Feared Ruler's Heart Was Unable To Stand Strain; Crowds Wait News; Queen
Stays At Bedside

LONDON, Dec. 3.—After suffering what apparently was a slight relapse, during which his physicians feared for the strain on his heart, King George rallied during the night and a slight improvement was noted in his general condition at 11 a. m. today.

The official bulletin issued at Buckingham Palace at that time said:

"The king had three hours quiet sleep since the last bulletin (12:10 a. m.) and his temperature is now 99.8. There is a slight improvement in his general condition.

The king's physicians arrived at Buckingham Palace shortly before 10 a. m.

Grave fears had been expressed for the king during the night when his doctors had expressed anxiety about the ability of his heart to stand the strain it had undergone in the last thirteen days of his illness. His temperature yesterday had been 100, but the lung condition had shown improvement.

There had been disturbing reports about oxygen which was administered to the king during the night, but an authoritative medical source at the palace said that this was administered in slight quantities as a tonic—frequent procedure in cases of this kind and not a cause for undue alarm.

Sir E. Farquhar Buzzard, physician extraordinary to the king and L. E. H. Whitby, noted biologist, who took a test of the king's blood last week, were called into consultation last night and they issued the first midnight bulletin that has been published since the king's illness.

The midnight report of the four physicians bore out the anxiety about the strength of the king's heart which had been expressed in the statement issued by Sir Stanley Hewett and Lord Dawson of Penn at 8:20 o'clock last night.

The queen bravely faced anxious hours during the night with her daughter, Princess Mary, devotedly at her side.

The Prince of Wales, heir to the throne, raced home from Africa on the fastest cruiser in the British navy.

Four of the most expert medical men in Britain waited on the king, staying with him most of the night.

At 11 a. m. an attendant hurried across the courtyard of Buckingham Palace towards the gate, bearing an official bulletin.

The news he bore was encouraging and the formality that surrounds the throne was broken. He could not wait to post his news and as he neared the gates, he called to the waiting throng:

"There is a slight improvement in the king's condition."

A mighty sigh escaped from the packed hundreds at the gates.

"Thank God, thank God," several cried.

The scene was impressive, the anxiety of the people was deep and sincere. The customary decorum absent and the tall, helmeted police could not keep the people in line.

Inside the palace, the tension was somewhat relaxed.

BUILDING DAMAGED AS FIREMEN BATTLE BLAZE WITHIN WALL

Sheriff Will Probe Origin
Of Fire; Prisoners Moved

The Greene County Jail was threatened with destruction by fire early Monday morning in what Sheriff Ohmer Tate characterizes as a deliberate attempt by prisoners to burn down the structure.

Firemen battled the blaze for three hours and although the actual damage by flames was small the water damage in the cell block is estimated to be considerable.

Twenty-two prisoners were confined in cells. Under guard, twelve county prisoners were transferred to cells at Police Headquarters temporarily while the ten federal inmates were removed to the juvenile cell room on the second floor of the jail.

Although Mrs. Ohmer Tate, wife of the sheriff, and a jail trusty both smelled smoke about 3 a. m. Monday, they could not trace its origin and the blaze remained undiscovered until shortly after 6 o'clock.

Investigation indicated to authorities that prisoners had apparently stuffed paper through a hole in the ceiling in a second tier cell on the west side of the cell block containing county prisoners.

The wadding had been set afire and the blaze was confined inside the ceiling. Because the interior of the cell block, both walls and ceiling, is covered with heavy steel sheeting, bolted to logs extending the length of the room, firemen experienced the greatest difficulty in getting water to the flames.

An attic located above the cell block is also similarly covered with sheeting. Dense smoke in the attic further hampered the efforts of firemen. It was necessary to unbolt the sheeting in various places on the inside and to cut holes in the roof of the building from the outside to ventilate the interior and permit the entrance of water.

The water damage was considerable and at one time the floor of the cell block was under half a foot of water. Bedding in the cells and other goods in a stock room were removed in a water-soaked condition.

Because of the difficulty in playing water on the burning logs inside the ceiling firemen did not get the blaze extinguished until about 9 o'clock.

Sheriff Ohmer Tate expects to launch an investigation to determine what prisoner or prisoners are responsible for the fire. The jail has a capacity of thirty-five. Grand juries have recommended that each cell be equipped with individual locks. Since only several of the cells have locks, it is considered difficult to determine whether more than one prisoner had a hand in the alleged plot.

The present jail, the sixth in the history of the county, was built in 1860. The cells are located in a one-story wing in the rear.

DAYTON HOLDUP MAN LINKED WITH LONG SERIES OF THEFTS

Pennsylvania Wants
Youth On Several Charges

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 3.—Pennsylvania authorities today were seeking the removal to Pennsylvania of William J. Cole, 23, wanted in connection with a series of robberies and automobile thefts.

Cole was arrested here in connection with the robbery recently of the Camargo Bank at Madeira, O., in which the cashier was forced to walk from his home to the bank with a bandit. Five other bandits remained at the cashier's home, guarding his wife and child.

Cole was linked with several Pennsylvania robberies by D. H. Austin of the Pennsylvania State Constabulary, who gave his history as follows:

Arrested in Dayton, Aug. 14, charged with holding up a gambling house. Jumped $3,000 bond, stole attorney's car and fled to Ardmore, Pa., where car found wrecked. Held up man in Philadelphia, escaped with $500 and victim's car. Machine found in Lancaster, Pa., coincident with theft of one belonging to Herman Cameron. Cameron machine later stopped on highway by Patrolman Russell Troup who was overpowered and kidnapped. Austin also implicated Cole in a number of Pennsylvania bank robberies.

ESCAPED PRISONER FROM PRISON FARM IS CAPTURED HERE

Lewis Brittingham, former Xenian, an escaped prisoner from the London Prison Farm, was recaptured by police at his brother's home here last Thursday night and returned to the prison farm Friday afternoon. Police Chief M. E. Graham revealed Saturday.

Brittingham walked away from the prison farm last September 23 in the evening and a $50 reward was offered for his capture. Sentenced for burglary and larceny, Brittingham was received at the farm from Clinton County November 12, 1927.

Prison farm authorities notified Chief Graham that the fugitive had relatives in Xenia. Thursday night Patrolmen Fred Jones, Charles Thompson and George Robinson caught Brittingham at his brother's home.

Police surrounded the house. Brittingham tried to escape through the rear door but found his escape cut off. He backed into a corner, drew a knife and attempted to defy the officers. He made little actual resistance, however, when police advanced and took the knife away from him.

Chief Graham notified W. F. Amrine, superintendent at the prison farm, and Brittingham was returned to London in the custody of an official who came to Xenia for him the following day.

Chief Graham learned that Brittingham has a wife and six children living in Xenia.

CORN BORER GAINS

Ohio's corn borer population this year is 70.3 per cent greater than that of 1927, according to figures made public by the federal department of agriculture. These figures are based on a recount of field population made each year by the federal scouts who examine 100 corn stalks in each of five typical locations in each of five typical fields in each township of the county being surveyed. Thus 2500 corn stalks are examined in each township and the number of infested stalks is taken as the indication for that township.

Ottawa County's borer population was reported as the highest in the state this year—76 borers to each 100 stalks. Lake County was second with 52 borers for each 100 stalks, and Lucas County is third with 32 borers.

In Ottawa County there were more than 6,000 borers per acre in this year's corn crop, with one third of the stalks infested. This did not cause serious damage to the corn, since many stalks had only one or two borers, which did not seriously affect the yield.

MOTHERS' GROUP TO MEET AT LIBRARY

The meeting scheduled for Monday night at the library, is the mothers' study group which meets once a month to discuss children's books. There seems to have been a question in the minds of some whether this was the initial meeting of the Friends of Books Club.

The program committee on the Friends of Books Club met last Wednesday and an interesting program was planned. It is impossible to announce dates at this time however, as the committee has not heard from the speakers as to whether the time planned will be convenient with them.

Those interested in open forum discussion of books are anxious to read the books to be discussed, which include "Disraeli," by Mauris; "Power," by Feuchtwanger; "The Island Within," by Lewisohn and "Matriarch," by Stearns.

CYCLISTS HURT AS VEHICLE SKIDS

Lawrence McPherson, 18, 428 W. Market St., was knocked unconscious but escaped serious injury when his motorcycle skidded on the Dayton and Xenia Pike, west of Trebeins, pitching the driver over the handle bars about 4:30 p. m. Sunday.

McPherson recovered consciousness soon afterward. His face was skinned, his knee was hurt and he was bruised up about the body. Kenneth Hickman, this city, who was riding behind him on the cycle escaped with a slightly injured knee.

They were returning to Xenia from Dayton. The accident is believed to have occurred when McPherson, trying to pass an automobile, applied the brakes too suddenly in an effort to avoid a collision with a car approaching from the opposite direction, causing the motorcycle to skid.

CORN BORER GAINS

Ohio's corn borer population this year is 70.3 per cent greater than that of 1927, according to figures made public by the federal department of agriculture. These figures are based on a recount of field population made each year by the federal scouts who examine 100 corn stalks in each of five typical locations in each of five typical fields in each township of the county being surveyed. Thus 2500 corn stalks are examined in each township and the number of infested stalks is taken as the infestation for that township.

Ottawa County's borer population was reported as the highest in the state this year—76 borers to each 100 stalks. Lake County was second with 52 borers for each 100 stalks, and Lucas County is third with 32 borers.

In Ottawa County there were more than 6,000 borers per acre in this year's corn crop, with one third of the stalks infested. This did not cause serious damage to the corn, since many stalks had only one or two borers, which did not seriously affect the yield.

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 3.—James W. Baird, 63, foreman of the local passenger department of the Pennsylvania Railroad, died here yesterday from uremic poisoning.

MOTHERS' GROUP TO MEET AT LIBRARY

The meeting scheduled for Monday night at the library, is the mothers' study group which meets once a month to discuss children's books. There seems to have been a question in the minds of some whether this was the initial meeting of the Friends of Books Club.

The program committee on the Friends of Books Club met last Wednesday and an interesting program was planned. It is impossible to announce dates at this time however, as the committee has not heard from the speakers as to whether the time planned will be convenient with them.

Those interested in open forum discussion of books are anxious to read the books to be discussed, which include "Disraeli," by Maurois; "Power," by Fuchtwanger; "The Island Within," by Lewisohn and "Matriarch," by Stearns.

CYCLISTS HURT AS VEHICLE SKIDS

Lawrence McPherson, 18, 428 W. Market St., was knocked unconscious but escaped serious injury when his motorcycle skidded on the Dayton and Xenia Pike, west of Trebels, pitching the driver over the handle bars about 4:30 p. m. Sunday.

McPherson recovered consciousness soon afterward. His face was skinned, his knee was hurt and he was bruised up about the body. Kenneth Hickman, this city, who was riding behind him on the cycle escaped with a slightly injured knee.

They were returning to Xenia from Dayton. The accident is believed to have occurred when McPherson, trying to pass an automobile, applied the brakes too suddenly in an effort to avoid a collision with a car approaching from the opposite direction, causing the motorcycle to skid.

$55,000.00

IN CHRISTMAS MONEY THIS YEAR!!

Think what this will mean to the enjoyment of Christmas in Greene County—$55,000 to be invested in gifts that will bring pleasure and cheer—to be used for the purchase of extra comforts and conveniences in the home—or to be re-invested in ways that will mean a substantial income in years to come. It is such an easy way to save that the hundreds who have come in each week and left a small amount on deposit have scarcely missed it—and yet it comes back now in a sum that is surprisingly large and that assures ample funds for the buying of the Christmas gifts that you have dreamed of giving. It is almost like having Santa Claus himself hand over the gifts—only it allows you the fun of selecting all the presents yourself. This year there were 1,150 members in our Christmas Club.

START NOW! FOR A MERRY CHRISTMAS IN 1929, OUR BOOKS ARE OPEN

Now is the time to make sure that you will have the same happy experience next year (if you have been a member of the club this year) and if you have not shared in this year's Christmas money right now is the time to start making sure of a share next Christmas. Come in and let us explain the system by which a little deposit each week grows into a big fat check at Christmas time. Once you have been a member of the Christmas Club you will always want to belong.

The Home Building and Savings Co. pays 5% on Christmas Savings Clubs. This is 1% more than any other Christmas Club in Xenia---why take less when you are entitled to 5%.

Former Sufferer Describes How He Was Relieved Of Stomach And Kidney Miseries.

A promise of abundant health for hundreds of Xenia people and deliverance from common health ailments was made by the Konjola Man when he came to this city two months ago from unusual successes in Cincinnati, Columbus and other large cities. His head-

At the same time, report after report is being received from men and women who have already been relieved of various disorders of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels or rheumatism and neuritis, by this compound.

Mr. D. L. Gerard, Bowersville, Ohio, (near Xenia) made a detailed report of the work of Konjola in his case and also offered his photograph for publication.

"Konjola has given me new health in every way," said Mr. Gerard, "and I am glad to tell others about it so that they may benefit in the same way. A trial convinced me of its merits and that is all I asked my friends to do when they inquire about this medicine."

"My case will sound almost unbelievable because it has reached the point where I thought it was hopeless. So many ailments troubled me that I did not know where to start to gain relief. The medicines and treatments I had tried over a period of two years failed to help me the slightest bit and as the days went by I continued to grow worse. Stomach trouble with its ensuing symptoms, including gas bloating, heavy sensation and bloating attacks came over me every day. Food gave me no nourishment—I did not have any desire for it. Weakened kidneys started giving me trouble at night—just when I needed rest in order to stand the miseries of stomach trouble the next day. Restless nights filled with constant risings, made me feel tired and worn-out the following day. Nervousness was the natural result of those ailments and the least unusual sound startled me. Life was simply miserable."

"How can I find words to describe the miraculous results I obtained through the use of Konjola? Truly it is a master medicine—the medicine of the age. I know that it must be a remedy of a million friends—all former sufferers restored to glorious health. The same as myself. Before I hardly knew what was happening Konjola had restored my stomach organs to natural and healthy action. Food reacted perfectly, nourishing me just as it is intended. Gas bloating and the other symptoms I described disappeared as if by magic. They have never returned. My kidneys do not give me the slightest trouble and I enjoy refreshing, energetic sleep. With the banishing of those two ailments my nerves quieted down and once more I take pleasure in the daily activities—free of all health troubles. I know that others can obtain the same results I did if they will only give Konjola a trial because it is a splendid medicine."

The Konjola Man is at the Galahar Drug Store, 33 East Main Street, this city, where he is meeting the public every day and introducing and explaining the merits of this medicine. —Adv.

JUDGMENT IN BANK CASE SUSTAINED BY COURT OF APPEALS

Judgment of Common Pleas Court in the case of The First National Bank of Osborn against Otto Streuting and Henry Streuting, involving a creditor's bill, was sustained by the Greene County Court of Appeals Saturday.

In the lower court the bank obtained a judgment February 28 and subsequently issued an order in garnishment against Realtor Thomas C. Long, who held a sale for the defendant, Streutings, on the preceding February 10.

W. A. Tidd and C. D. Lackey were made parties defendant and entered certain claims by virtue of an assignment of the fund made on February 9 and 10 immediately preceding the judgment.

The principal claim is that of W. A. Tidd, who filed a written claim on the day before the sale, February 9, which was accepted by Long. The question is of right of a party to make an assignment of less than the full amount involved because Long accepted the assignment.

The Appellate Court ruled the trial court was right in ordering payment of the amount due to Tidd.

So far as Lackey is concerned, the higher court held his is a small claim for $41 due him from the Streutings under an assignment February 10, just prior to the garnishment of the bank. This claim was also allowed by the trial court and the appeals court decided it was no reason to disturb the judgment either in favor of Tidd or Lackey.

Morris D. Rice, was attorney for the bank and Attorney Frank L. Dean represented the defendants.

COMMUNITY CHEST IN SIGHT OF $10,000 GOAL IS REPORTED

Xenia's first Community Chest fund is within sight of its goal of $10,000, Chairman T. H. Zell announced Monday.

It was announced at chest headquarters that the quota will be oversubscribed providing tentative pledges, otherwise special gifts, now in prospect, are paid.

Chest officials are optimistic that the formal announcement of the quota has been reached may be made Tuesday or Wednesday.

Everything depends, however, they say, upon the receipt of special contributions that have tentatively been obtained from Xenia individuals and firms.

The chest fund, as it now stands, amounts to $9,600 or exactly $400 short of the goal.

The chest campaign, originally designed to last one week, was extended for another week to enable workers to complete the task of an exhaustive canvass of the city.

It was discovered that because of incomplete organization, due to the short notice given in flash to prepare for the drive, seven days were insufficient to interview every available prospect.

OLD TOWN GROCERY REGISTER RIFLED

An undetermined amount of money in cash and checks was stolen from a cash register in the general store conducted by Robert Toews, at Old Town during the absence of the owner over the week end, he reported to the sheriff's office Monday.

The proprietor went to Dayton Sunday morning and when he returned Monday morning he discovered a thief had rifled the cash register, after breaking a window to gain entrance. Toews was not certain as to the amount stolen but believes it was small. A check revealed nothing else was taken.

GEORGE RIFE, WELL KNOWN IN COUNTY, DIES HERE SUNDAY

George W. Rife, 71, Cedarville, well known Greene County resident, died at a Xenia hospital, Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. His death followed an accident at his farm, October 19, when he fell from a ladder. His hip was broken in the fall and he never rallied from the shock.

Mr. Rife was born in Pitchin, August 21, 1857 and had always lived in that community. He was married November 11, 1880 to Emma Jane Garlough and they lived on the same farm, located two miles east of Clifton, until they retired from the farm, moving to Cedarville, in 1919.

Mr. Rife was a faithful member of the Clifton United Presbyterian Church from childhood. He took an exceptionally active interest in the work of the church.

He was a teacher in the Sunday School for forty years and served as an elder in the church twenty-nine years. After removing to Cedarville, he was elected to the office of ruling elder in the Cedarville U. P. Church.

Mr. Rife leaves his widow and three children, Mrs. Fred Estle, near Clifton; Miss Carrie, who resides at home and J. Wallace Rife, who lives on the home farm.

Mr. Rife was the son of John and Mary Kitchen Rife. The following brothers and sisters survive: Stephen K. of Anthony, Kan., J. Brough of Cedarville; Fred F.

of Anthony, Kan., Mrs. Gordon Collins and William C. of Cedarville; Miss Margaret B. of Springfield, and the Rev. Lee E. Rife of Philadelphia. There are four grandchildren.

Mr. Rife at the time of his death was president of the board of directors of the Cedarville Exchange Bank, and was also a member of the board of the Clark County Mutual Insurance Co.

Funeral services will be held at the Cedarville U. P. Church, Tuesday at 1:30 p. m.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Gas bloating and the other symptoms I described disappeared as if by magic. They have never returned. My kidneys do not give me the slightest trouble and I enjoy refreshing, energetic sleep. With the banishing of those two ailments my nerves quieted down and once more I take pleasure in my daily activities—free of all health troubles. I know that others can obtain the same results I did if they will only give Konjola a trial because it is a splendid medicine."

The Konjola Man is at the Galahad Drug Store, 33 East Main Street, this city, where he is meeting the public every day and introducing and explaining the merits of this medicine. —Adv.

JUDGMENT IN BANK CASE SUSTAINED BY COURT OF APPEALS

Judgment of Common Pleas Court in the case of The First National Bank of Osborn against Otto Streuting and Henry Streuting, involving a creditor's bill, was sustained by the Greene County Court of Appeals Saturday.

In the lower court the bank obtained a judgment February 28 and subsequently issued an order in garnishment against Realtor Thomas C. Long, who held a sale for the defendant, Streutings, on the preceding February 10.

W. A. Tidd and C. D. Lackey were made parties defendant and entered certain claims by virtue of an assignment of the fund made on February 9 and 10 immediately preceding the judgment.

The principal claim is that of W. A. Tidd, who filed a written claim on the day before the sale, February 9, which was accepted by Long. The question is of right of a party to make an assignment of less than the full amount involved because Long accepted the assignment.

The Appellate Court ruled the trial court was right in ordering payment of the amount due to Tidd.

So far as Lackey is concerned, the higher court held his is a small claim for $11 due him from the Streutings under an assignment February 10, just prior to the garnishment of the bank. This claim was also allowed by the trial court and the appeals court decided it sees no reason to disturb the judgment either in favor of Tidd or Lackey.

Morris D. Rice, was attorney for the bank and Attorney Frank L. Dean represented the defendants.

COMMUNITY CHEST IN SIGHT OF $10,000 GOAL IS REPORTED

Xenia's first Community Chest fund is within sight of its goal of $10,000, Chairman T. H. Zell announced Monday.

It was announced at chest headquarters that the quota will be oversubscribed providing tentative pledges, otherwise special gifts, now in prospect, are paid.

Chest officials are optimistic that the formal announcement of the quota has been reached may be made Tuesday or Wednesday.

Everything depends, however, they say, upon the receipt of special contributions that have tentatively been obtained from Xenia individuals and firms.

The chest fund, as it now stands, amounts to $9,600 or exactly $400 short of the goal.

The chest campaign, originally designed to last one week, was extended for another week to enable workers to complete the task of an exhaustive canvass of the city.

It was discovered that because of incomplete organization, due to the short notice given in which to prepare for the drive, seven days were insufficient to interview every available prospect.

OLD TOWN GROCERY REGISTER RIFLED

An undetermined amount of money in cash and checks was stolen from a cash register in the general store conducted by Robert Toews, at Old Town during the absence of the owner over the week end, he reported to the sheriff's office Monday.

The proprietor went to Dayton Sunday morning and when he returned Monday morning he discovered a thief had rifled the cash register after breaking a window to gain entrance. Toews was not certain as to the amount stolen but believes it was small. A check revealed nothing else was taken.

GEORGE RIFE, WELL KNOWN IN COUNTY, DIES HERE SUNDAY

George W. Rife, 71, Cedarville, well known Greene County resident, died at a Xenia hospital, Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. His death followed an accident at his farm, October 19, when he fell from a ladder. His hip was broken in the fall and he never rallied from the shock.

Mr. Rife was born in Pitchin, August 21, 1857 and had always lived in that community. He was married November 11, 1880 to Emma Jane Garlough and they lived on the same farm, located two miles east of Clifton, until they retired from the farm, moving to Cedarville, in 1919.

Mr. Rife was a faithful member of the Clifton United Presbyterian Church from childhood. He took an exceptionally active interest in the work of the church.

He was a teacher in the Sunday School for forty years and served as an elder in the church twenty-nine years. After removing to Cedarville, he was elected to the office of ruling elder in the Cedarville U. P. Church.

Mr. Rife leaves his widow and three children, Mrs. Fred Eastle, near Clifton; Miss Carrie, who resides at home and J. Wallace Rife, who lives on the home farm.

Mr. Rife was the son of John and Mary Kitchen Rife. The following brothers and sisters survive: Stephen K. of Anthony, Kan., J. Brough of Cedarville; Fred F.,

of Anthony, Kan.; Mrs. Gordon Collins and William C. of Cedarville; Miss Margaret B. of Springfield, and the Rev. Lee E. Rife of Philadelphia. There are four grandchildren.

Mr. Rife at the time of his death was president of the board of directors of the Cedarville Exchange Bank, and was also a member of the board of the Clark County Mutual Insurance Co.

Funeral services will be held at the Cedarville U. P. Church, Tuesday at 1:30 p. m.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germ.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE PIT FROM WHENCE WE CAME—Hearken to me, ye that follow after righteousness, ye that seek the Lord: look unto the rock whence ye are hewn, and to the hole of the pit whence ye are digged.—Isa. 51:1.

INAUGURATION DAYS

The inauguration of Myers Y. Cooper as governor of Ohio will take place on Monday, January 14. Other state officials elected November 6 will also begin their terms at that time. They are John T. Brown, lieutenant governor; Clarence J. Brown, secretary of state; Joseph J. Tracy, state auditor; Bert B. Buckley, state treasurer, and Gilbert Bettman, attorney general. Robert H. Day and Florence E. Allen will assume their duties as judge of the supreme court of Ohio on Monday, January 7.

Members of the legislature also take office on that date. United States Senator Simeon D. Fess will succeed himself March 4 and Congressman Theodore E. Burton will succeed Cyrus Locher in the senate for short term beginning December 15. Senator Burton will fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Frank B. Willis.

Ohio has again elected a group of the highest type to public office and will watch their public careers with much interest.

MOST EXPENSIVE ANIMAL

The United States health service recently issued its annual appeal for a crusade against the rat, which it characterizes as the "most dangerous and expensive animal pest existing on man's bounty." The effective work done by this service in the extermination of rodents makes it their most deadly and unrelenting enemy.

There are a number of reasons why this government agency has been so relentless in its pursuit of rats and mice. The best protection any community can have against bubonic plague is to fight the rat energetically. The food bill for rats in the United States alone is estimated at $200,000,000 a year, and this does not take into account the loss due to wanton destructiveness of the animal.

The average person has no knowledge of the rat life which fairly teems around him; and this ignorance, after all, is the only excuse the public can have for failing to rout the rat. It has been shown that the progeny of one pair of rats would number more than 20,000,000 at the end of 10 years if not decimated by disease, men and the cannibalistic instinct of the animal itself.

SHOWING HIS COURAGE

Herbert Hoover is doing the bravest thing physically ever done by an American statesman. He is going into Latin America where they complicate their politics with assassination. He is going into countries where we are regarded as greedy, brutal imperialists. He is going on an errand of peace and amity, but he is taking a terrible risk. He knows the risk if the rest of the world does not. Surely here is a man whose physical courage may never again be questioned.

The Way of the World

By GROVE PATTERSON

LIVING IT

"Our code of ethics is lived—not printed. I would urge every member to adopt loyalty, co-operation, team work, and fair play as his personal ideals."

These are encouraging words by the president of a business organization, L. T. White, head of the National Standard Parts association. It's rather an "inspirational" thing to have a code of ethics in writing. Some men or organizations have their codes printed in fancy form and framed. To live your code of ethics—that is something else.

NOT TOO BIG

A trans-continental train was considerably delayed at an Idaho station. A traveler walked up the main street. He saw leaves and dirt on the sidewalk in front of a certain store. It happened that the man was the owner of a chain of stores extending all over the United States. He borrowed a broom and cleaned the sidewalk in front of his store, so that the place would look attractive to possible customers. Perhaps this act reveals the chief reason why he owns a great chain of stores.

AS TO WORK

On this subject of work, one wonders why there is such a prejudice against work with the hands. Vocational guidance experts in all schools know that every young college man wants a white collar job. He scorns a place in a factory unless that sort of experience is absolutely necessary to prepare him for what he wants to do later. What is it about the human being that rebels against wearing overalls if he can get anything to do in better clothes? All honest work is equally honorable, and the man willing to work with his hands, as well as with his brains, frequently can make twice as much money as a mere white collar man.

RADIO'S RISE

The rise of radio from an interesting experiment to a giant industry in eight years is largely a triumph of newspaper publicity. G. Clayton Irwin, general manager of the Chicago Radio Show, tells his hearers that "while the radio industry was in the process of formation, growth and transition, the radio men learned to depend upon advertising as their chief ally in making America radio conscious. . . who did not do so are among the skeletons which lie unnamed in the highway of radio progress."

It is not too much to say that in this fast-stepping industry a curator must advertise to live, let alone make progress. I think newspaper advertising is the back-bone of radio advertising. By Earl E. Kogelman specifically that if an executive had to choose but a single medium to help his sales that medium should be the newspaper.

NEW'S COMMENT and VIEWS

of a
New Yorker

By WALTER WINCHELL

NEW YORK—The penalty of freak fame is exemplified again in the case of Fred Hansen, the man who snapped pictures while the Vestris collapsed at sea. One newspaper has been receiving complaints from readers, one of which growled "What was this guy Hansen doing taking pictures when he might have been saving lives?"

A sound argument, perhaps, but a man who would take pictures on a sinking ship is not to be handled harshly. He probably is the sort who collects old coins, foreign stamps, cigarette coupons or autographs.

THE HECHT YOU SAY!
"Dear Walter," affectionately writes Ben Hecht, collaborator on the hit, "The Front Page" newspaper play. "I have definitely learned that the man murdered in room 341 was not Arnold Rothstein at all. It musta been two other felons."

But you're wrong there, mister. The police haven't found out much about the mystery, but they have learned that the dead man certainly was Rothstein.

THANKS FOR THE AD
Editor H. N. Swanson of Collier's writes in the current number: "Lois Long's column doesn't appear because she just presented her husband with a baby girl. By the way, they have named their little girl Lois."

Mr. Dreiser, it appears, has company.

CARDIAC ANALYSIS
How dare you say I broke your heart?

It makes me wild with indignation. You never had a heart to break—It's just—a pumping station.—Jean Douglas.

BEHIND THE OBSCENES
Certain sectors of Broadway are amused at the "inside" story of a producer of a musical show whose "heart" is in the production. He learned that she was receiving the attentions of the musical director, so instead of firing her, he dismissed the baton jangler.

The other night the press agent of another attraction flirted with her, and they became fast friends. The producer's spy lost little time telegraphing him to hasten to Philadelphia, where the show is playing, and the jealous sponsor (who has a description of her "flame") goes back stage every performance and inspects every face in the male chorus, looking for the culprit.

The other side of the yarn is that when it is related to various Broadwayfarers who have sweethearts with the same show, they invariably frown, and inquire: "Do you know her name? It's probably my girl!"

And, most likely, it is!

THE MORNING MAIL
(Or "Oop!")

"Dear Mr. W., writes Franklin P. Adams of the N. Y. World, who clothes his baby to a clothesline in his back yard, 'my article has been called to an article in a local newspaper saying that I hang my baby to the clothesline in the back yard. That isn't a baby; it's an effigy of Walter Winchell, because I am not one of those who think hanging is too good for the culprit.'"

One of the pillars of the popular-priced theatre is Walker Whiteside, veteran pretender, who has brought joy, laughter, and, at times, tears to the provincials who flock to the winter temple of amusement he brought his players.

Last season, Mr. Whiteside played at a 42d street theatre in an innocuous piece which failed to prosper, but it was related at the time that the visit was purely an annual one to bring the "New York touch" to the more affable paying customers in the hinterlands.

At the Belmont theatre, the star and his little group of troupers, which he directed, have returned to New York for what probably will prove another temporary stay. The play is "The Royal Lie," written by Rose Coghlan's brother Charles, who adapted it from Dumas' "Kean," and it is rich with hammy material to please the most particular stage-struck actor.

Much of the "comedy romance" cracks, and the director's tempo is slackened by the principal player, whose delivery is deliberately slow. Yet at times he is a fascinating make-believer, this Whiteside, who appears to realize that he is better appreciated away from the stiff competition in New York. He attracted encouraging handclapping the opening night, at any rate. Hugh Huntley, Daisy Belmore and Elwyn Eaton were others who contributed gracefully enough to what is better described as an old-fashioned play and a feeble one.

Kellygrams

By FRED C. KELLY

I was staying a while ago, in a hotel where one of the guests was Mr. George F. Baker, possibly the shrewdest banker of his generation. Many of the guests were gaily discussing the rise of prices in the stock market and visited from time to time each day a broker's office in the hotel. But George F. Baker never went near the place nor showed the slightest interest in stocks until one day when an alarming slump occurred. Then he sauntered in and bought a few hundred shares of bargains. Men of the George F. Baker type never buy any other kind. I noted, too, that the stocks he bought were "inexpensive" and long neglected, but by uncanny coincidence they had a sharp rise within 48 hours.

PROFIT AND LOSS

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—A new line-up of our major political parties is easy enough to talk about.

A lot of such talk is to be heard on Capitol Hill just now, as senators and representatives gather in Washington for the winter session of congress, with the lesson of the recent election fresh in their minds.

It is the same old talk of the necessity for the liberals in both old-line groups to split off from their respective organizations and combine, as a liberal party, leaving the conservatives, Republicans and Democrats alike, to coalesce as a single party of conservatism.

There was some tendency at the last election to regard Al Smith as the liberal and Herbert Hoover as the conservative candidate, but it was not at all clear cut. Besides, however, the rival candidates may be regarded as having classified, there was little to choose between the two platforms.

Consequently, the result was jumbled. Politicians all agree on that.

The liberal element would like to flock by themselves if they could. The conservatives probably would not mind it, either, in their own ranks. Moreover, they dislike liberal insurgency; they think they generally would win, anyway.

All this being the case, why do not the followers of the opposing schools of thought sort themselves out and start again, where they belong?

It would be satisfactory and logical.

It has been proposed over and over again. The late Senator La Follette even tried to effect the re-division in 1924. But it never works. Why not?

"It never works," say Senator Coleman L. Blease of South Carolina, "because of prohibition."

"That question cuts every political group crossways. It takes precedence over everything else. While it survives, we can have no party that is not divided between wets and dries. Until we get rid of it, we never shall progress another inch in any direction."

The issue is one on which Senator Blease is pre-eminently the man to quote, for a number of reasons.

A liberal, he wants the parties to re-align.

He hails from the dry south, and votes dry in the senate, but is a wet, in principle, clear through, and unlike all other wets who vote dry, proclaims his faith from the house.

Mixed, thus he sees the problem from both sides.

He has, for a politician, the extraordinary nerve to say what he thinks. He speaks out in meekness with a vengeance.

Other liberals, returning to Washington, make the bluff that they were not so badly beaten on November 6 after all.

Senator Blease is free to admit that they were beaten like heck.

He speaks tentatively of a combination in future between the south and west—but shrugs pessimistically, at the same time.

"Oh yes, we need two new parties," he indorses, "but how are we going to get them, while any two you can think of divide for ways?"

"They talk very glibly about a re-alignment."

"I wish somebody would tell me how it's going to be done."

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Eye massage must be most carefully done or it will do more harm than good. It is necessary that all massage movements for the eyes should be extremely light. Pulling or dragging motions will disfigure the eye tissues in an incredibly short time. An excellent massage movement is as follows:

With your third and fourth fingers start at the bridge of the nose and stroke up toward the brow with long, smooth strokes almost as though you were combing the eyelids. Be sure to raise the eyelid with each movement, holding it just barely enough to prevent effective without pulling to noticeable degree. Repeat this for at least a half a dozen times on each eye.

Another movement is as follows: With your third and fourth fingers stroke the eyes from the nose and stroke up toward the brow, then even movements. The eyes should be completely relaxed, slightly closed during this movement.

Third massage movement that is effective in charming the boss, "Don't let his foot on my feet" is a rotary motion. With the third finger work in tiny circles from the center toward the corners of the eyes, making all your little rotary movements upward and outward. Be sure that you have a light touch on this movement.

To brace the brow and strengthen the little eyelid muscles, rest your elbows on the table, the heel of your hand against the top of the eyelid and press very gently upward.

But be sure that these movements are done with well-creased finger tips, so as to glide softly and smoothly over the surface, thus avoiding any "pull" on the delicate tissues.

MOON PITCHER STUFF

A flicker star, a wow so long as he remained voiceless, recently took a sound test, which was scored a miserable minus. The director communicated the sad news to the ex-gamewinner who owned the actor's contract.

"No good!" repeated the magnate. "What was the matter?"

"Well," explained the director, "everything he said sounded guttural."

"Guttural he talks," exploded the boss. "Don't let his foot on my feet!" he said in English. Ain't he from Kansas?"

Devil's Food
Coffee

This is a good menu for Thanksgiving, or, if you prefer, the turkey and pumpkin pie for that day, make it a Sunday or guest dinner. Devil's food cake can always be relied upon to please the young folks, anyway, even if the older ones do groan on account of the calories it contains.

Today's Recipes
Devil's Food—Cream 3-4 cup butter with 2 cups sugar, melt 1/2 cup grated unsweetened chocolate and add 4 eggs, well beaten, whites and yolks together. Sift 2-1/4 cups flour with 1-4 teaspoon baking powder, and a pinch of salt and a teaspoon cinnamon, and add alternately with a cup of milk. Stir well, bake in 3 layers for 20 minutes in moderate oven. Tip out on a sieve and for the filling, cook 2 cups sugar and 3-4 cup milk for 4 minutes, and beat until it thickens, beating in a teaspoon vanilla. Melt 4 squares unsweetened chocolate over boiling water. Spread white filling between the layers and on top of cake, and over this spread the melted chocolate.

Suggestions
Care of Pictures
Before changing the pictures after moving look over their backs to see if there are any holes in the paper. If so, paste on new paper to save your pictures from having dirty faces, as the dust is sure to seep in from the back if there are holes.

To Serve at Party
A novel dessert for the bridge party or luncheon usually puzzles the hostess. The ice cream charlotte answers the question for her. Take a large angel cake and with a sharp knife enlarge the hole in the center, removing the cake. Spread inside with preserved cherries or quince marmalade. Fill the bottom with vanilla ice cream, spread the top with more marmalade and sprinkle with chopped toasted almonds. Cover the top with a mound of flavored whipped cream. In serving, cut in triangular pieces like cake. This will serve eight people liberally.

White Fruit Cake
One-half cup butter, one cup sugar, five egg whites, one and three-fourths cups flour, three-fourths pound grated cocoanut, one-half pound baking powder, one-half pound blanched almonds, three-fourths pound citron, chopped. Cream butter until soft and smooth. Add gradually the sugar, continuing the creaming until light and frothy. Fold in the stiffly-beaten egg whites. Mix and sift the dry ingredients thoroughly, taking care not to break the air cells. Add fruit, nuts, cocoanut and flavoring. Bake in a loaf pan in a slow oven one hour. Cover with boiled icing.

ON JOY OF THIS
EXPECTANT MOTHER

Answers to Mothers.
God could not be everywhere; therefore He made mothers.
—Jewish Proverb.

"I am a married woman, past 38, and have a boy of 18. I have prayed for other children all these years, and have been denied. Now it seems my prayers have been answered and I am so happy! But my friends tell me my age is against me and that it will mean death for me if I go through with it. They also say that as my boy is so big and manly it is a disgrace, and that no mother with any respect for her boy would allow herself to continue pregnant."

"Dr. Peters, if you knew the longing in my heart all these years, and then to have such fears and heartaches put upon me! My boy is a good boy, but he does not like to be babied. Won't you please give me some advice? Do you think it wrong for me to go on, on account of my boy, and is there as much danger as my friends say?"

MRS. M.
Dear Mrs. M., you have your baby. You have shown by having one child that you are able to bear children, and there is no more danger now than there ever was, so long as you have the right care.

The fact that your big boy does not want to be babied now (by you!) shows that he is a normal boy.

If he has not already had normal sex instruction, you certainly cannot have a more favorable opportunity than now to see that he gets it; if you or his mother are not capable of giving him, then through the family physician or some good textbook. If he has the right conception of parenthood, he will be happy to know that he is going to have a little brother or sister.

Now put away your fears and don't allow your friends' distorted and really obscene ideas to affect you. They show the lack of proper sex instruction in their youth; otherwise they would have a more wholesome attitude towards, and profound respect for, parenthood.

We have an article on the diet during pregnancy and nursing, and a list of books recommended to mothers, which you may have by following column 1.

Children's Sleeping Hours.
"Just" many hours should a child of two years sleep a day? My little girl used to sleep 12 hours at night and after dinner, but during the last two weeks has cut her sleeping hours to ten at night and six after dinner. Is she getting enough sleep? She is losing weight. MRS. R.

The following table will show you how many hours of sleep are required by children of different ages:

Age	Hours
Under 6 years	13
Under 7 years	12 1/2
Under 8 years	12
Under 9 years	11 1/2
Under 10 years	11
Under 11 years	10 1/2
Under 12 years	10
Under 13 years	9 1/2
Under 14 years	9
Under 15 years	8 1/2
Under 16 years	8
Under 17 years	7 1/2

You see, your baby is not getting enough sleep, Mrs. R. As she is underweight, it may be possible that she is not getting sufficient nourishment and is hungry, or that she has some physical derangement. In either case, you must take her to a children's specialist or to a baby clinic for a check-up.

We have a list of modern books on the care and feeding of children, which you may have. Tomorrow: Fat Arms and Legs.

ONLY WOMAN TO ESCAPE GRIEF WITH
BOY FRIEND WAS EVE
We sometimes think mankind (which embraces womankind) has changed a lot in the course of the centuries, don't we? But, as a matter of fact, way down underneath we are very little changed since the days of our ancestors, Adam and Eve. Of course Eve had no trouble in attracting the boy friend because she had no rivals and she was a novelty besides, but I'll bet her daughters did.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am desperately in love with a boy who claims to be 14 but looks much older. How can I find out his right age? This boy was in love with my girl friend but this was off. Then he fell in love with her sister. That affair lasted longer. This boy seems very cool to me. I think that he blames me for breaking with the girls. How can I tell him I did not have anything to do with it? I have met another boy who took me to a dance. Would there be any harm in going with this boy for awhile? Do you think it would fake the first one jealous?"

"BROWN EYED SUE."
Unless he accuses you openly of breaking his friendship with the girls you can tell him you did not. Sue, as I remember, can be very deeply in love at 14, but believe me, dear, one gets over it, so cheer up.

Mistaken: For the sake of your children, both you and your friend should abide by your mistakes and not break up your homes. As a matter of fact, it is not his wife or your husband's fault you two married in the way you did, is it? You can't run.

Peter's Adventure

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

FLYING
AWAY FROM TROUBLE
Peter was happy because the two who had brought him to the Great Woods remained his friends in spite of the dreadful things the Two-Legs had done to his relatives. But before Peter could say a word the Dove continued:

"Anyhow, I hate this place now. I can't bear to wait until the great Red Ball rises and I shall have to look upon my wounded brothers."

"I don't ever want to find out how many of my old companions are missing, either. Come, jump upon my back, and I will carry you far away from the river that is green."

With these words the Dove dropped to the ground at the foot of the tree and waited for the boy to join him.

"This is awfully good of you, old fellow," said Peter, gratefully. "If you are sure that you are quite ready to leave your friends I shall be glad to have your company, for to tell you the truth I have no idea where to go from here nor how to get there. Have you?"

Dove chuckled.

"Of course I have," declared he. "Whoever heard of a Dove starting for a place before he knew where he was going. Wouldn't you like to visit my

Fessler Of Ohio Wins Place On All-American Team

HARPSTER, STRONG, GAGLE AND CARROLL PLACED IN BACKFIELD

Advice Of Experts Helps Frank Getty Name All-Stars; Array Of Talent Makes Selection Of Stars Difficult

By FRANK GETTY
United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—One of the greatest of All-American football teams since the late Walter Camp first originated the diverting and highly difficult practice of thus recognizing the outstanding stars of the season is named today by the United Press.

Coaches and officials throughout the country contributed their advice in the selection of the eleven, and it was with the utmost difficulty that a large field of worthy claimants to all-America honors was sifted until the final selections received the stamp of universal approval.

Second and third all-America elevens also are named, for in the case of many positions on the United Press team it was not a case of deciding what players were entitled to places, but of being forced to leave off stars who, in any other season, might have won this highest of seasonal awards.

Howard Harpster, of Carnegie Tech, most brilliant of modern field generals, is the greatest quarterback of a generation of football stars. There was nothing the youngster from Akron could not do with a football—and with a football team. Harpster is first and unanimous choice.

Yet he is only a little way ahead of Don Williams, Southern California's great quarterback and Howard Maple of the Oregon Aggies who showed his gridiron greatness in the east when his team mopped up with New York University.

Opposed to Maple that day was the best running back of the year, Kenneth ("Mike") Strong of N. Y. U., high scorer and greatest ground gainer of the season, who is fast as a deer, 200 pounds of dynamite, a man who could punt sixty and seventy yards and throw passes with speed and accuracy.

Strong's running mate on the United Press eleven is Christian Gagle, captain-elect of the Army football team, a halfback who, by his amazing all-around ability made a comparatively weak cadet aggregation look like one of the season's best.

A veritable one-man team this fall was Charley Carroll, of the University of Washington, all-America fullback beyond dispute and who earned unanimous recognition as the greatest back in the far west.

It was with the utmost difficulty that Luke Mizell of Georgia Tech and Paul Scull of Pennsylvania were left off the first eleven. Both are quite worthy of inclusion in any company of football's immortals. Banker of Tulane, Hume of Southern Methodist and Crabtree of Florida were mighty backs in their respective sections, while Brazil, of Detroit's unbeaten, untied team, was the best offensive star of the Midwest.

This was not a season for great ends. Irvine Phillips of California was the greatest of the Pacific coast, while Fessler of Ohio State played brilliantly throughout the season, and is a worthy running mate to Phillips. Hayercraft of Minnesota ranked right up to Fessler in the "Big Ten," while Franklan of St. Mary's was declared by many coaches to be a rival of Phillips for Pacific coast honors. Barna of Hobart was the best end in the east and Abernathy of Vanderbilt in the south.

The tackles of this year's all-America are two of the best of a decade. Otto Pommerening, in a weak Michigan line, stood out as greatest in many a "Big Ten" season.

LEAGUE OFFICIALS PUZZLED OVER FOOTBALL TROPHY AWARD

Officials of the Miami Valley High School League, at the league meeting scheduled for Tuesday night, December 3, at the Van Cleave school at Troy, face a dilemma.

The chief business of the league will be to award the football trophy for the 1928 season just closed. Piqua and Sidney tied for the league championship and exactly what method will be pursued in awarding the trophy is what is puzzling officials of the league.

It is considerable of a problem and although several ways out of the situation have been advanced, none have been voted entirely satisfactory. Piqua gave Sidney its only defeat in the league but to award the trophy to Piqua would not be considered fair.

There are also objections to another suggestion that the award could possibly be made on the basis of comparative scores of the two teams. The most feasible plan, officials believe, is to declare both teams co-winners of the title and present each school with a trophy.

The meeting will be featured by the usual routine business of the league, including scheduling of spring sports and possibly mapping out a league basketball schedule for next season. Coaches and athletic directors of the six schools in the league are expected to attend the meeting.

CLIFTON MAN HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Edwin Wing, 62, Clifton, received a fractured hip and internal injuries, when an auto owned and driven by Lloyd Herring, Clifton, collided with another machine on Limestone St., Springfield, Monday morning about 7 o'clock.

Mr. Wing was removed to the City Hospital, Springfield. Mr. Herring received only minor cuts and bruises. His auto was wrecked. Occupants of the other car were not seriously hurt.

GRAND JURY PROBES MURDER CHARGE AND OTHER CASES HERE

The October grand jury, recalled in special session by Prosecutor J. Carl Marshall, convened in Common Pleas Court at 9 a. m. Monday to investigate the third shooting of Caleb Hitchcock, 23, by Gilbert Cooper, 49, November 24 following an argument over some traps set out along Massies Creek near Cedarville.

The grand jury is expected to determine the degree of murder with which Cooper will be charged.

Ten other cases were also listed on the criminal docket for grand jury consideration and a number of these were also expected to be disposed of by the grand jury at the one-day session Monday.

The jury was still engaged in its deliberations at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon and indications were that a report would not be made before late in the afternoon.

The grand jury is composed of Clayton McMillan, foreman; Margaret Cooper, A. P. Ketter, Grover King, Anna Williamson, Jesse L. Zediker, R. L. Bean, E. S. Ketter, Nannie Shambaugh, Ross Cowan, Leola Lackey, William Cooley, Les Smith, Howard Bradley and George Bradley.

Troop No. 45, Boy Scouts of America, held an interesting meeting at the Scout cabin Friday, November 30. Instruction in first aid was given. Reports of the patrol leader were heard and they showed good turns performed by Scouts in distributing Thanksgiving baskets. The good turn badge was again voted to Scout R. Surace, making two weeks in succession he has received the award. A Christmas party was also announced for the troop.

BELDEN ADVISES ON BUYING AUTO TAGS; SALE IS LAUNCHED

A few things must be remembered by autoists in purchasing the new 1929 auto licenses, according to Delver Belden, Greene County Auto Club secretary and deputy commissioner in charge of the tag distribution in this county. These are:

1.—New auto tags must be on automobiles not later than January 1.

2.—Autoists must bring their bill of sale and make application personally for the new plates. Under no circumstances send a messenger after the license.

3.—Trucks must be weighed until the weight was established last year by the present owner.

4.—Tags may be purchased now but autos should not be equipped with them until December 21.

Distribution of the licenses began last Saturday from a room in the Dakin Bldg. Autoists are advised that the distributing headquarters will observe daily office hours from 8 a. m. to 4 p. m. except on Saturday nights when the office will also be open in the evening from 7 to 8:30 o'clock.

MAYOR'S COURT

IMPOSE FINES

Fines of $10 and costs each were imposed upon George Rogers, 27, and "Bossie" Coleman, 31, both colored, by Mayor John W. Prugh Monday morning as a sequel to a fight on Orchard St. Rogers pleaded guilty to being disorderly and Coleman to drunk and disorderly. Mayor Prugh suspended a sentence of thirty days in the County Jail imposed on Rogers. Coleman was arrested by Patrolmen Charles Thompson and J. E. Craig Sunday night and Patrolman Fred Jones took Rogers into custody Monday morning.

BRINGING UP FATHER

I WON'T SEE ANY ONE TO-DAY—NOT EVEN DINTY—I'M TOO BUSY.

THERE'S A MAN OUTSIDE TO SEE YOU.

TELL HIM I'M OUT AN' LET HIM KNOW WHEN HE'S GONE.

HE'S GONE.

DID HE ACT AS THOUGH HE KNEW ME?

JUDGIN' FROM WHAT HE SAID AN' THE LANGUAGE HE USED—HE KNOWS YOU WELL.

YOU'RE FIRED.

READ THIS FIRST:

The marriage of Byrd Hamilton of Jacksonville, and Larry Browning, a successful young business man from Cleveland, was one of unusual simplicity and beauty; but several factors, of deep significance to her happiness, caused an uneasiness in Byrd's mind, even during the ceremony, and within the next few days grew into a definite anxiety. For Larry had undoubted magnetism, a charm, that women couldn't resist, and had brought him already a dubious success in business. And he had become the center of a young crowd whose only interests in life were jazz, speed and money.

On their return to Cleveland Byrd regretfully relinquishing the idea of a little house in the suburbs, and consented to take an expensive furnished apartment in the Coronado Manor, an apartment hotel near the downtown section. Byrd, an efficient housekeeper and manager, made the three little rooms attractive with her choicest wedding gifts, and studiously hoped for a real home in the future.

Larry's friends became a permanent entertainment committee, constantly arranging dinners and parties. The group consists of Tiny and Fred Oberman, who has made a fortune in rather doubtful enterprises; Jack Duncan, who made love to all women and was unscrupulous in business; his wife, Margy, who has broken under the care of her three little children and the worry over her indifferent husband; Kent Everson and India Campbell, known as the "wildcat" and a former sweetheart of Larry's.

"You're going to make an awful mistake, honey-suckle, if you wait around for Larry all your life. Plunge in and have a little fun yourself," Jack was leaning toward her, one arm around her and his warm, alcoholic breath pouring over her cheeks.

"It's not because I'm so darning puritanical," said Byrd, trying to push Jack a little farther away. "It's just because petting and drinking and running around with other men doesn't mean fun to me. I don't enjoy it, honestly. Even this, your arms around me, makes me feel a little sick. Please don't, Jack."

But before Byrd realized what was happening Jack had suddenly taken her in both arms, holding her to him closely with arms of steel, and kissed her passionately, fiercely again and again.

Byrd pushed him violently away. She began to cry nervously, with pent-up anger and disgust.

"Why, Jack Duncan, how could you do such a thing?" Her hands, inflexible as boards, refused to move. They lay helplessly on the handle of the door. "I think you're a beast! I wouldn't ride with you now if you were the last man on the earth!"

But taut under this high nervous tension, she still sat there like a steel ingot.

"Don't be a little fool, Byrd. I'm sorry I frightened you." He tried to speak softly, but there was a cruel note underneath. "I'm really crazy about you, and you ought to know it. Please love me a little bit."

LET'S LIVE! MILDRED LAMB

READ THIS FIRST:

The marriage of Byrd Hamilton of Jacksonville, and Larry Browning, a successful young business man from Cleveland, was one of unusual simplicity and beauty; but several factors, of deep significance to her happiness, caused an uneasiness in Byrd's mind, even during the ceremony, and within the next few days grew into a definite anxiety. For Larry had no doubt magnetism, a charm, that women couldn't resist and had brought him already a dubious success in business. And he had become the center of a young crowd whose only interests in life were jazz, speed and money.

On their return to Cleveland Byrd regretfully relinquishing the idea of a little house in the suburbs, and consented to take an expensive furnished apartment in the Coronado Manor, an apartment hotel near the downtown section. Byrd, an efficient housekeeper and manager, made the three little rooms attractive with her choicest wedding gifts, and sturdily hoped for a real home in the future.

Larry's friends became a permanent entertainment committee, constantly arranging dinners and parties. The group consists of Tiny and Fred Oberman, who has made a fortune in rather doubtful enterprises; Jack Duncan, who made love to all women and was unscrupulous in business; his wife, Margy, who has broken under the care of her three little children and the worry over her indifferent husband; Chet Everson and India Campbell, known as the "wildcat" and a former sweetheart of Larry's.

At Larry's invitation, India went to the opening of the Marigold Gardens as an "extra." Margy was called home on account of the illness of the baby and Byrd found herself Jack's partner for the evening.

Driving back to their apartment over the dance with Jack, Byrd was dismayed to find that he had driven to the curb and stopped his car.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XIX

"You're going to make an awful mistake, honey-suckle, if you wait around for Larry all your life. Plunge in and have a little fun yourself." Jack was leaning toward her, one arm around her and his warm, alcoholic breath pouring over her cheeks.

"It's not because I'm so darned puritanical," said Byrd, trying to push Jack a little farther away. "It's just because petting and drinking and running around with other men doesn't mean fun to me. I don't enjoy it, honestly. Even this, your arms around me, makes me feel a little sick. Please don't, Jack."

But before Byrd realized what was happening Jack had suddenly taken her in both arms, holding her to him, closely with arms of steel, and kissed her passionately, fiercely again and again.

Byrd pushed him violently away. She began to cry nervously, with pent-up anger and disgust. "Why, Jack Duncan, how could you do such a thing?" Her hands, inflexible as boards, refused to move. They lay helplessly on the handle of the door. "I think you're a beast! I wouldn't ride with you now if you were the last man on the earth!"

But taut under this high nervous tension, she still sat there like a steel ingot. "Don't be a little fool, Byrd. I'm sorry I frightened you." He tried to speak softly, but there was a cruel note underneath. "I'm really crazy about you, and you ought to know it. Please love me a little bit."

"Let's not speak about it," said Byrd, distractedly. The idea of having a married man declaring his love for her seemed to Byrd like the depths of infinity.

She wondered what she ought to do about it. If she told Larry she was sure he would call her a puritan and make light of the whole matter. He was probably making love to India that very moment.

She longed for her father! For his broad, comforting shoulder and his understanding mind.

Jack started the car and they drove the rest of the way in silence.

Byrd and Jack were the last to arrive at the apartment.

"What did I tell you?" asked India, in a shrill voice. "They've been dilly-dallying along the road."

Larry looked up smiling from the drink he was mixing on the living room table.

"You sure look as gully as two criminals," Larry's words corroborated India's. "Been taking a buggy ride?"

"Give Byrd about six months, with Jack's help," nodded India.

She had broken the lamp.

"and she'll be hitting the high spots with the rest of us."

Byrd's ability to enter into the zest of the party was suddenly of little moment to her. The only thing that really mattered was that Larry evidently had forgotten that he had a grievance against her. He had forgotten their quarrel!

"Get some more ice!" he asked in a friendly tone.

And Byrd ran eagerly to the kitchen to help. Evidently they had all tried to be of some assistance, or it was a mess.

There were lemon and orange peelings piled high in the little sink, and the floor was sticky where Larry had stood squeezing them out and breaking up the ice. The kitchen was so tiny that a little disorder made it look like a battlefield.

And Larry was in his glory. The evening had reached that degree of accelerated motion that amused and delighted him. He called it "the shank of the evening." For Larry took a mischievous delight in pouring a succession of cocktails into people's glasses, varying each with his wide knowledge of "new ones," so his guests were quite unconscious of the exhilarated stage they were reaching.

He got a huge enjoyment out of the antics this state produced.

Something in himself was released by watching others kick over the trail.

And Larry set the pace for the whole party.

His gay laughter broke from room to room like light thunder echoing and re-echoing in the distant heavens. His natural vitality, quickened by the succession of "Golden Glows," "Silver Phizzes," "Horses' Necks," and "Stepping Blondes," strung along throughout the evening, kept him going at breakneck pace.

Now he pretended that he was the manager of the "Marigold Gardens," and was receiving the guests. He made crazy speeches as he recognized prominent citizens, promising them a special line of entertainment.

He introduced the greatest specialty act in America, Miss India Campbell, in her inimitable imitation of the Duncan Sisters in "Topsy and Eva."

And India, no less agile and versatile than Larry, was on her feet, bowing to the guests and indicating that this was a great pleasure and she would endeavor to please them.

She twisted her straight, black hair upon hairpins to resemble tails on a pikaninny's head, adopted a negro dialect, and strutted up and down as "Topsy," then, changing as quickly into a little angel, she was weeping over Uncle Tom as "Little Eva."

All this spontaneous and irrepressible fooling always moved Tiny to break out with some historic pyrotechnics, usually a perfectly horrible demonstration of what she couldn't do.

Tiny was now before them, announcing the rendition of "Baby Face," after the manner of a well-known silver-tongued song bird. She began in a high soprano, varying her voice up and down the scales, in what she was sure was a beautiful imitation of Galli-Curci.

"Rosy-cheeked and tur-net-up nose and curly hair—" she warbled, in a high, off-key pitch. A first kissed Byrd and thanked her for the wonderful evening.

It was two o'clock, but Byrd couldn't go to bed, leaving the apartment in such a state of confusion.

She slipped off her dress and worked in her little white silk slip. The air in the apartment was heavy and hot. She carried out all the ash-trays and picked up the glasses from unexpected places, behind the davenport, under the chairs, on the radiators and in the broom closet.

Byrd could never leave soiled dishes stand all night. By the time she had the glasses washed and dried, Larry would be back. She cleaned out the sink again. She remembered it was the fourth time. Then she got out the mop and mopped up the kitchen floor.

It was three o'clock, and still Larry hadn't come.

Byrd was so tired that she left her clothes in a little heap in the middle of the bedroom floor. She crawled wearily into bed.

But tired as she was, she couldn't go to sleep. Thoughts of Larry and India went racing through her head.

She sighed deeply. She never worked harder in her life, and she knew she had never had less fun. The liquor they had drunk had cost Larry twice as much as her grocery bill for the entire week. And the cost of the lamp! To say nothing of the labor of cleaning up! Even if Larry hovered over her as Fred hovered over Tiny, the evening would still have been ruined for her.

Grown-ups, thought Byrd, had such awfully hard work amusing themselves. They hadn't the spontaneous instincts for play that children had, but had to go to endless effort to convince themselves that they were having a good time.

Well, what would she suggest by way of diversion, she asked herself, bitterly, to take its place? How would she entertain a group of Larry's friends without the help of a little gin? She realized helplessly, that she had no solution. Except to change the friends.

It was about a twenty-minute ride to India's house and back. But it was long after three when she heard Larry's key in the door.

NOVEMBER NOT AS COLD AS POSSIBLE

November wasn't such a bad month, taking it by and large, as far as weather was concerned. The monthly summary of W. W. Neffert, Dayton observer, shows that the average temperature of 43.7 degree was 1.7 degrees over the normal 42 for November.

Precipitation for the month amounted to 3.56 inches, an excess of 0.64 over the normal 2.96 but there is still an accumulated deficiency in precipitation of 4.15 since January 1.

There were just three clear days, six partly cloudy, twenty-one cloudy and fifteen on which precipitation occurred. There were 74.5 hours of actual sunshine, or a percentage of 25.

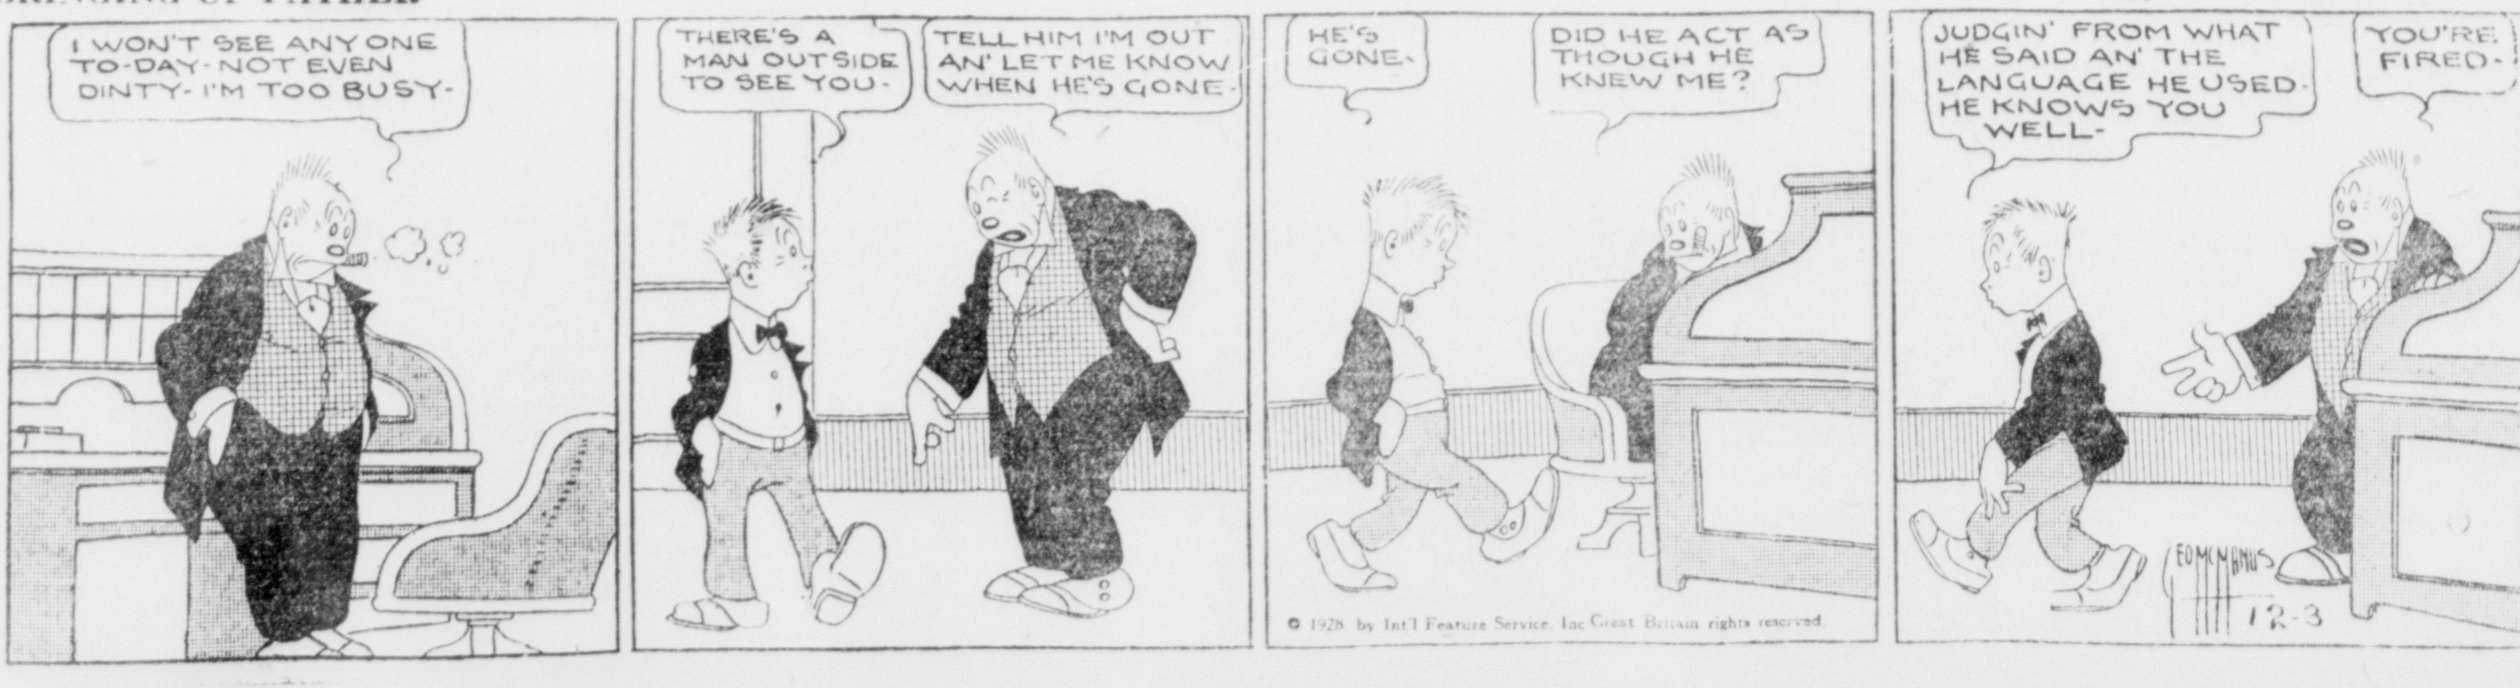

Slightly Improved!

The above photo shows Clara Bow, flapper of the films, who, stricken with influenza, was taken to Glendale, Cal., hospital. Her condition is reported slightly better. The "flu" roster now has a total of eleven Hollywood names upon it.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 3.—Silken bloomers must go the way of the bustle and other old-fashioned doodads so far as the beautiful actresses of the screen colony are concerned. Finding a substitute for the dainty underthings may not be any tax on the ingenuity of the women players, but they must make a substitution.

The talkies, responsible for all the present revolutions in the film industry, must take the blame for this necessary transformation and Alfred Santell, the director, claims credit for the discovery.

Corduroy and crinoline, for male and female players respectively, long ago vanished, but it was not until Santell was taking tests recently did he come out against the silk bloomer girls.

Corduroy and crinoline, as is well-known, make fairly audible rustling noises without any amplification. Through the movie microphone used for talkies these rustles result in roars.

Tests of the beautiful Dorothy Dwan for a picture about to go into the filming revealed a rustling when she walked. The noise interfered with the clearness of her voice. She wore neither corduroy nor crinoline.

With due modesty and appropriate blushes Santell inquired of Miss Lwan as to the nature of her underclothing—especially such portions as might produce the objectionable noise.

The blame finally was attached to glove knit silk bloomers and on Santell's word the rustling stopped after she removed the offenders.

Santell also is the authority for the statement that silk dresses made scratching noises in sound pictures and that costume pictures must of necessity become obsolete.

since crinoline and silk dresses were necessary for the women of past periods.

Santell now is directing Vilma Banky in her first talkie production and in her first characterization in which she will cast off the dignified aloofness she always has maintained.

She will be a bright, saucy shop girl, something entirely different from the usual languorous individual she appears.

The story, yet untitled, has been written with due care for Miss Banky's accent and she will be a young Hungarian immigrant girl.

With due modesty and appropriate blushes Santell inquired of Miss Lwan as to the nature of her underclothing—especially such portions as might produce the objectionable noise.

The blame finally was attached to glove knit silk bloomers and on Santell's word the rustling stopped after she removed the offenders.

Santell also is the authority for the statement that silk dresses made scratching noises in sound pictures and that costume pictures must of necessity become obsolete.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Higgins, S. Detroit St., entertained a party of half a dozen young women at dinner.

Mr. Joe Linkhart was a visitor in Cincinnati.

Mrs. Tom Long, E. Market St., was the hostess as a delightful noon dinner when she entertained sixteen of her women friends.

The Carry tours continue to draw large audiences. Wednesday night the lecture was on Italy and Old Rome and was greatly enjoyed.

The new cordage mill of the H. and A. Co., on the Cincinnati pike will be running with a full force for the first time next week.

NEWTON H. SHOUGH,
SOUTH CHARLESTON
BUSINESS MAN, DIES

Newton H. Shough, 30, well known business man of South Charleston and son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Hornick, E. Third St., this city, died Saturday evening at 5 o'clock, at Mercy Hospital, Columbus, following an illness of less than a week.

Mr. Shough underwent an operation last Wednesday for appendicitis and obstruction of the gall, and his condition was critical from the first.

He was a member of the South Charleston village commission and was vice president of that body. He was also a prominent young business man and since the death of his father, C. M. Shough a year and a half ago, he operated the Shough Flour Mills at South Charleston. He was also active in civil and social affairs as well as church and fraternal circles. He was also well known in Xenia where he was popular in a large circle of friends.

Mr. Shough was a resident of South Charleston his entire life. He was a member of the Methodist Church and the Masonic Order.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Agnes Hornick Shough; his mother, Mrs. Mary Shough and one sister, Miss Louise Shough.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 3 o'clock at South Charleston with the Masonic Lodge in charge. Burial will be made in South Charleston Cemetery.

MISS SUSAN COST
CLAIMED BY DEATH

Miss Susan Elizabeth Cost, 83, passed away at her home in Yellow Springs, Sunday morning at 5:20 o'clock. She had been ill three weeks from a complication of ailments.

Miss Cost was the youngest of eight children. Private funeral services will be held at the home in Yellow Springs, Wednesday at 2 o'clock with burial in Woodland Cemetery, Xenia. Friends may call anytime.

PAROLE NOT DUE

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 3.—Because one-third of his seven and a half year sentence will not be completed before Jan. 1, Josiah H. Kirby, president of the defunct Cleveland Discount Company, cannot be paroled before that time, it was announced today.

The federal paroles board has recommended a parole for the former financier who was sentenced for using the mails to defraud. It was expected that Kirby would be released within the next few days.

PRIEST IS HONORED

CIRCLEVILLE, Dec. 3.—The title of monsignor was bestowed here yesterday upon the Rev. Father J. S. Hannan, pastor of St. Joseph's Catholic Church here for twenty-seven years. The ecclesiastical title was conferred by the Rt. Rev. James Joseph Hartley, bishop of the Columbus diocese.

SCOUT HAS PLAN TO SAVE XMAS
TREES

Grover Harden, Jr., 13, patrol leader of a newly organized Boy Scout troop composed of colored lads, has a practical plan to check deforestation by cutting of Christmas trees.

Young Harden has arranged with a Yellow Springs nursery, to provide fir trees for Christmas use roots and all to prevent cutting.

The small trees are dug up, their roots carefully preserved, and tied up in burlap. Young Harden, who is taking orders for the trees and will deliver them with a truck provided by his father, Grover Harden Sr., says that by occasionally watering the tops, the trees can be kept fresh and green during the time they are used for Christmas decorations.

After the holidays, the trees can be planted and may again be dug up for use the following year. Under this plan the waste of cutting fir trees, which eventually reach the dump or bon-fire, is eliminated and celebrators have a living emblem which can be made a permanent thing of beauty in the yard.

Young Harden conceived and developed the idea, obtained the co-operation of the nurseryman and his father and anticipated a good business for himself as well as doing a good turn in the interests of tree preservation, thus living up to the Boy Scout code.

His father is a member of the committee now attending the Scout school at Springfield, and when the committee has completed its schooling, a charter will be granted the troop, which will make the fourth in Xenia. Scoutmaster Roberts is now in charge and the troop is fully organized and functioning awaiting the formal charter.
